

START HERE - How to use these audios

I wanna do a quick introduction about how to use these bonus coaching audios. I get dms emails and comments from people every day who feel like if they could just get on a call with me or ask me their very specific question about their very specific situation or symptom. That is what would give them the thing that they're finally missing.

But as someone who has now created a list of all the people I reached out to, all the people I got on the phone with, I can promise you that's not how this works. Not when you're sensitized. You already have everything that you need. This course gave you the principles, the principles that drive recovery, and the principles that drive desensitization.

What I would tell you on a coaching call is exactly what is in these audios. What you're experiencing is normal. That is part of the process that it's gonna suck and to keep going. The combination of what is in the course and what is in the audios is what you will occasionally need reminders on. That's really it.

I would just be reminding you of what you already know. So that's what these are. These are reminders. The things that I would say if you messaged me at 2:00 AM freaking the hell out, the things that I would repeat on every single call they're here so you can access them when you need them without paying for extra access to me or just to hear me say the same thing again and again.

'cause that's what it ends up being. It's just repeating over and over. Keep going. I know it's hard. Keep moving forward. Yes, you're gonna have to wear that in a very uncomfortable way. Yes, that's normal, all of that. But that said, please don't turn these into another coping mechanism. If you're listening to these audios on repeat to feel better, that is reassurance seeking.

That's not what they're there for. So I want you to use them. Listen to them. When you get really stuck, when you need the reminder, when you feel like, oh my gosh, if I could just ask her about this very, this very specific thing, I want you to. Come listen to one of these things and then take the reminder that all you really need to do is to keep going and then go and live your life.

Go and implement these principles. There is nothing hidden in a conversation with me or asking me a question or, or anything that I left out that's mysterious. Everything you need is in this course, and these audios are here to support you and to tell you what I would tell you if we hopped on a call together.